Anglo-Saxons of today.

Long years ago, the viking bold,
With strong, determined hand,
His vessel sailed on Northern seas
And conquered all the land.
With heart of oak and arm of steel
He held victorious sway,
And left as proud inheritance
Anglo-Saxons of to-day.

Then hurrals for the brave Anglo-Saxon race;
The sons of the viking bold!
Our power is felt from aea to sea.
As 'twas in days of old.
And hurrals for the friendship that's tried and true,
That nothing can o're efface.
United by blood and kindred tongue,
The grand Anglo-Saxon race!

In brotherhood we will firmly rest, United hand in hand.

If danger comes, like viking bold We will to our colors stand.

No foe we fear, no favors ask, Naught can our hearts dismay.

United, we can rule the world, Anglo-Saxons of to-day.

Allen Lowe.
